Honorary Degree ★
Keith Dye
Keith, the founder and owner of Enercon Water Treatment Ltd., never had the chance to pursue a post-secondary education. But that didn't stop him from achieving professional success in a career that took him from journeyman parts man to successful entrepreneur. Over the years, Dye also supported many community organizations, including Lethbridge College. He first volunteered for the college's Clayton Wine Auction committee and then served as a member and later chair of the Lethbridge College Board of Governors. Seeing the workings of the college up close showed him first hand the ways education can pay off too. "Education is so important," he says. "It opens so many more doors."
